What is *Whip-o-lite

Here is the answer—

A shade material possessing all the fine illuminating qualities of fine glassware and the decorative qualities of parchment has been the goal of lamp manufacturers for many years. With this object in view, Aladdin research engineers after years of labor, have at last succeeded in producing such a material, and in addition, it is free from the objectionable features of both glass and parchment.

Whip-o-lite is the trade marked name of this amazing new material of which Aladdin shades are now made. It has high transparency and diffusion of light. It is permanent in color, and withstands heat and resists warping. Light filtered thru Whip-o-lite is very restful, soft and mellow, with little loss, of strength or efficiency. Whip-o-lite is decorative in its texture, but when decorated by our experienced shade designers, these shades are creations of irresistible eye appeal. It's washable, too.

Fuel is important:

Buy your kerosene from a reputable and well known oil company and be sure to tell them it is for a wick-burning lamp — it will protect your lamp and save you trouble and expense in the long run. If your wick and burner parts become crusted with a heavy carbon within a week's use, the fuel you are burning is not suitable for a wick-burning lamp. And remember—gasoline, benzine and other explosive fuels are dangerous. Don't use them in your Aladdin Kerosene Lamp.

Also:

For best results—use only GENUINE ALADDIN PARTS in your Aladdin lamp. If you want the best service from each Aladdin part, make sure the others are genuine Aladdin, too! These parts have been scientifically designed to give the best lighting results, the most trouble-free service when used together.
